Twenty-Fourth Sunday in Ordinary Time
September 12/13, 2026

In today's first reading, St. Paul reminds the Romans that, as Christians, they no longer live for themselves but for the Lord. In doing so, he reminds them that they are stewards of all that God has entrusted to them, called to live—and ultimately die—in Christ.

Stewardship reminds us that we are all entrusted with the many gifts God has in store for us. These gifts are given so that we may live lives filled with grace, sharing His love and faithfully carrying out all that He calls us to do.
